Democratic Capitalism - 37:575:377 (Spring 2013)

Course Description: This course examines five distinct strategies for creating a more inclusive and democratic economy where workers can obtain a fair share in the wealth that they create. We review relevant political and economic thinkers, both classical and contemporary who have spoken both in support and against these ideas. We review relevant public policies and models both domestic and international. Finally, we will examine the various challenges brought on by efforts to create increased democracy within the firm, exploring the role of unions and organizational cultures.

Office Hours: By appointment only (email required to make appointments). Availability will be between 8:30 AM and 10:30 AM on Tuesdays at SMLR Labor Center 160 Ryders Lane.

Required Books and Reading:

- Beyond the Corporation: Humanity Working, David Erdal, The Bodley Head, London, 2011. Not published in the United States. Week 1 and 2 readings will be made available on Sakai, but students will be expected to purchase either a hard copy (on Amazon or other sites) or a digital copy via Amazon Kindle at this shortlink: amzn.to/Q94qC2 prior to Week 3 (February 11) session. One copy will be held on reserve at SMLR Carey Library – to find the library see this site http://smlr.rutgers.edu/carey-library
- Democratic Capitalism: The Way to a World of Peace and Prosperity, Ray Carey, AuthorHouse, 2004. Complimentary (Free) copies of this book will be made available at the class
- Other Required Readings – Listed in syllabus below and available on Sakai

Grading: The following components will comprise 100% of the grade:

- Mid Term Exam – 30%
- Final Exam – 30%
- Participation – 40%

Approach: This course will make use of weekly lectures, the regular use of film, guest lectures and both large and small group discussion.

Participation: Participation represents a relatively high percentage (40%) of the final grade. Attendance at lectures and class meetings is critical to the class. Attendance will be taken in class and those not participating will lose points on the participation score. Lecture material will be presented in class that is not covered in the readings and will make up a significant part of mid-term and final exams. Beginning in week 2, in advance of each class, all participants are expected to submit through Sakai (no later than 12 Noon EST on Monday’s) two weekly items: 1) a single paragraph comment as well as 2) a single question inspired/provoked by that week’s readings. Those weekly submissions will be graded on a 1-5 scale, will be used anonymously to help provoke discussion in the class and will be included as part of your participation grade.
Week One: Introduction to Democratic Capitalism – Monday, Jan. 28, 2013

Brief Outline: After introducing members of the class to one another, this session will introduce the broad themes of the course. We will discuss the apparent tension between a democratic political sphere and an economic sphere generally operating on other than democratic principles. Are concepts of democracy and efficiency, particularly at the level of the enterprise, compatible? Where are these ideas to be found in the modern world? Finally, we will review the five “verbs” of democratic capitalism that provide the basic structure for the course.

Required Readings: (32 Pages)

- Beyond the Corporation: Humanity Working. David Erdal, Introduction, Chapter 1, Owning a Business and Making it Perform, pps. 1-25 (PDF of Chapter 1 provided on Sakai – All students expected to obtain hard copy or digital ownership of Beyond the Corporation: Humanity Working prior to February 4 class session.

Week Four: The Five Verbs of Democratic Capitalism: Reform, Take, Start, Negotiate, or Buy

Verb 2: To Take – Monday, February 18, 2013

Brief Outline:

In this session, we will cover two topics. We will first cover the primary research objections to the viability of worker ownership as an economic model for the firm. Next, we will introduce the second verb of democratic capitalism, to “Take.” This segment will focus on the dramatic efforts of workers and managers in Argentina in 2001 who in the face of massive plant closings took direct action and occupied their factories, converting them overnight into democratic worker-owned firms. We will begin this segment with a viewing of an award winning documentary called “The Take” that explores how this novel effort took place. We will discuss the film and the readings listed below that summarize positive and negative data concerning this initiative in Argentina a decade after its launch.

Required Readings (50 pages):

- Does Employee Ownership Enhance Firm Survival?, Park, Kruse and Sesil, Advances In the Economic Analysis or Participatory and Labor Managed Firms, Vol. 8, 3-33, pps. 1-8
- Film: The Take, Klein Lewis Productions.

Week Five: The Five Verbs of Democratic Capitalism: Reform, Take, Start, Negotiate, or Buy
