COURSE OVERVIEW
What determines who is allowed entry into the country? How does immigration policy connect to practices of inequality? In this course, we will examine such questions by understanding how the law is socially constructed and how its enforcement relates to immigration within the U.S. and more globally.

The course explores the history of U.S. immigration policy as well as its impact on the rights of citizens and non-citizens in today's world economy. Immigration is a broad topic, this course focuses upon how immigration policy distinguishes who can be a citizen and why others are denied entry. We will cover a range of issues by focusing upon race, gender, class, and sexuality as organizing principles. Students are introduced to how individual choice is connected to the social structure, such as the government, economy, and family. The readings will outline how immigration laws have defined who is free and who is deviant, both across U.S. history as well as in the current time period. Students will build on their abilities of critical thinking, writing skills, and evidence based research. Through course readings, class discussion, weekly response memos, and papers, students will understand the connections between national policy, social science research, and patterns of immigration.
COURSE REQUIREMENTS & GRADING
There are five requirements and the grading rubric is as follows:

Class Participation: (140pts; 24% of final grade):
This course uses a discussion-based format to improve comprehension of texts and analytic skills development throughout the semester. Students are expected to study ALL assigned texts carefully and work through the complexities of readings prior to class. Within class discussions, students are encouraged to participate actively by sharing insightful and constructive comments. In part, class discussions are venues for student’s to hone their abilities of constructing and articulating a critical analysis of texts.

Each class, students have the opportunity to earn a total of 10 points for participation. Allotment of points will be discussed during the first two classes. Since class discussions are significant component of the learning process as well as the overall grade, attendance is highly encouraged. However, if a class session has to be missed due to an emergency, please send an email prior to class and report to the Rutgers Absence Reporting System. Class instruction will begin promptly at the time specified and will not be repeated, as such it is important to arrive ON TIME. Walking in and out of a session is highly discouraged. Of course, emergencies arise, please be respectful to other students and exercise common sense. In addition, please send an email prior to class about any late arrivals or early departures from class. Unexcused absences, late arrivals, early departures will result in no participation points for that class session. With the exception of a break at the halfway point, students are expected to remain in class for the entirety of the session.
The use of technology for purposes of note taking and viewing class readings is permitted. This does not include cell phones, which must be switched to vibrate (no audible ringtones) and not used at all during class. Students using cellphones or other technology for anything besides note taking and viewing readings will receive no participation points for the class session. This includes but is not limited to surfing the web, email, or disruptions to the class. Lastly, students are not permitted to record, videotape, or photograph any class session without consent and authorization of the professor and their classmates. These guidelines are in place to establish an inclusive and fruitful learning environment.

Group Presentations: (100pts; 24% of final grade)
Each student will have the opportunity to participate in a collaborative learning exercise. The specific prompts for the group presentation will be shared in a separate document during week two. During this session, groups and selection of respective presentation days will be determined by random assignment. The group presentation involves (1) applying that week’s readings to one of the three scenarios presented in the handout and (2) clarifying the main concepts of the texts to the class.

During the week of presentations, the group members leading class discussion are not required to submit weekly memo critiques. However, all group members are required to read the memo critiques made by classmates.

Weekly Memo Critiques: (260pts; 26% of final grade)
Writing is a process of thinking and an exercise in clarifying unformulated ideas. The course offers multiple opportunities for students to improve both their abilities of critical thinking and writing skills. The weekly memo critiques are designed for students to make mini-arguments and receive constructive feedback for improvement.

For each week’s memo, (1) identify one claim from the readings assigned for that week, (2) formulate a question in relation to that claim, and (3) proceed to answer that question. Use no more than 250 words for each memo, it should be clear, concise, and convincing.

The memo should not merely be a response, but a carefully reasoned critique. Please share your memo with the class using SAKAI, no later than Monday at noon (the day prior to class). Late submissions will not be accepted without prior approval.

Midterm Paper: (250pts; 25% each of final grade)
The midterm will be a 3-page paper; prompts will be distributed in class for the short writing assignment. Since the weekly memos are practice to formulate smaller arguments in relation to the readings, these can be used to build a larger argument within the midterm paper.

Final Paper: (250pts; 25% of final grade)
For the final, you will write an analytic paper building upon one of the concepts introduced in class relating to immigration and public policy. The paper will be (3-5) pages in length. Prompts will be distributed in class, in addition, for the final assignment students will have the option of constructing own topic of inquiry. Please discuss your topic with the professor by week 13.
ACADEMIC INTEGRITY
Violations of academic integrity are not tolerated in this course, all other courses at Rutgers, or at any institution of higher learning. Academic dishonesty, whether intentional or unintentional, has serious consequences. Please review Rutgers University’s Academic Integrity website at: http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/ to understand how to avoid violations of academic integrity (see links on left menu of homepage).

ASSIGNMENT POLICIES:
Late Papers, Make-ups and Incompletes: There are no make-ups allowed for weekly memo critiques. Papers not turned in during class on the due date will be penalized one grade per day (A to B+ to B, etc). Incompletes for the course are given only in the case of a documented medical or family emergency. In these documented cases, an incomplete is only available if you have completed at least 2/3 of the course assignments (the first two papers).

Paper Draft Policies: During office hours prior to paper submission, I am happy to provide feedback on outlines of paper (no drafts). However, paper inquiries sent after 5pm the night before the due date may not be responded to, so get your questions in early.

COURSE READINGS
Please study each work with attention to the following questions:
1. What is the main argument? What are the sub-claims?
2. How do we assess its veracity? What evidence supports the main argument?
It is highly recommended to stay on top of readings as concepts introduced in each set of weekly texts build upon the previous set. All readings are made available on SAKAI.
