

An Introduction to Library Information Services For SMLR Students Majoring in Labor Studies

RUTGERS UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES (RUL)

<http://www.libraries.rutgers.edu/>

Rutgers students have access to ALL Rutgers libraries, in person and online. This website is your starting point, where you can locate hours, directions, the Library Catalog, book delivery options, Ask A Librarian, databases, tutorials, and much more.

CAREY/SMLR LIBRARY

<http://smlr.rutgers.edu/carey-library>

Labor Education Center, 50 Labor Center Way, (732) 932-9513

Donna L. Schulman, Library Director, dlschulman@work.rutgers.edu

Eugene McElroy, Library Associate, mcelroy@work.rutgers.edu

Come in and say hello. Or, email Donna with a question about research or Eugene with a question about borrowing a book. We are open during the semester 10am-8pm M-Th, and Friday and Saturday 10am – 2pm.

ONLINE RESEARCH GUIDES

Labor Studies and Employment Relations: <http://libguides.rutgers.edu/lser> was created for the MLER program and is a good starting point for research papers. It will connect you to RUL databases, RefWorks, the Library Catalog, and Internet web sites with scholarly information and labor data.

For additional Library Guides on Labor Studies:

MORE ON DATABASES

RUL subscribes to hundreds of databases. Some access articles on specific subjects, some offer information on corporations, some focus on laws and legislation.

The Carey Library subscribes to the BNA Labor and Employment Law Resources Center, plus electronic newsletters from BNA, a labor law publishing company. SMLR graduate students can access the LELRC off-campus; contact Donna by e-mail for a password, and to be put on the Labor Relations Week mailing list.

REFWORKS:

<http://www.libraries.rutgers.edu/rul/refworks/refworks.shtml>

RefWorks is a citation management tool, licensed by Rutgers for student use. You can use it to organize article, book, and website citations and to produce a bibliography in the style of your choice (APA, MLA, U of Chicago, etc.). Create an account at the above link, online tutorials are available.

REFERENCE

Carey Library staff is available during library hours to answer questions about library services and to help with your research. If you cannot come in person, call or e-mail us at the above contact points. In addition, librarians at all RUL Libraries will answer reference questions. You can also ask questions using the Ask A Librarian and Reference Chat services available on the RUL web site.
