COURSE DESCRIPTION:

This course explores the history of the labor movement in the U.S. from 1880 to 1945. Course themes include the sources and forms of conflict between workers and employers; changes in technology, production, and workplace organization in an evolving capitalist economy; the impact of racism and sexism on the labor movement; the different types of unions and worker organizations which were formed in this period; and the on-going debate over the goals and purposes of unions.

Although unions are not the exclusive focus of the course, we will closely study how labor unions were affected by changes in our economy, political system, and culture, as well as how working people and their unions impacted and shaped these systems. Through this process of mutual interaction, who labor unions represented, what they sought to accomplish in the short- and long-term, and how they attempted to reach their goals evolved. At the same time, the basic purpose of the labor movement - to defend and advance the interests of working people vis-à-vis powerful employers and a government which often supported employers – remained unchanged.

In this course, we will look at how the labor movement's ability to improve their members' living standards and working conditions widely fluctuated from 1880 to 1945. In the late 19th and early 20th centuries unions were relatively weak most of the time, almost marginal in their influence. However, in response to the crisis conditions of the Great Depression of the 1930s, workers organized powerful unions and became a central element of a new, progressive coalition which reshaped our economy and political system.
LEARNING OBJECTIVES:

Rutgers University, the School of Management and Labor Relations (SMLR), and the Labor Studies and Employment Relations Department have established the following learning objectives for this course:

From the Rutgers University Core Curriculum:  HST, SCL, WCr and WCd
- Explain the development of some aspect of society or culture over time. (HST, Goal k).
- Understand different theories about human culture, social identity, economic entities, political systems and other forms of social organization. (SCL, Goal m).
- Communicate complex ideas effectively, in standard written English, to a general audience, and respond effectively to editorial feedback from peers, instructors, and/or supervisors through successive drafts and revision. (WCr, Goal s).
- Communicate effectively in modes appropriate to a discipline or area of inquiry; Evaluate and critically assess sources and the use of conventions of attribution and citation correctly; and analyze and synthesize information and ideas from multiple sources to generate new insights. (WCd, Goal t).

From the Labor Studies and Employment Relations Department:
- Demonstrate an understanding of the perspectives, theories and concepts in the field of labor and employment relations. (Goal 1).
- Make an argument using contemporary or historical evidence. (Goal 4).

From the School of Management and Labor Relations:
- Communicate effectively at a level and in modes appropriate to an entry level professional. (Goal I).
- Demonstrate an understanding of relevant theories and apply them given the background context of a particular work situation. (Goal IV)

Instructor's Learning Objectives:
In addition to the learning objectives listed above, the following learning objectives are based on the specific topics and issues covered in the course:
- Understand the critical role of the labor movement in our society.
- Recognize why and how workers have formed different types of labor organizations.
- Demonstrate an understanding of how workers and their organizations (including unions) have been shaped by the larger society of which they are a part but have also contributed to changing the larger society.

STATEMENT ON REMOTE INSTRUCTION

This course is normally done in an in-person class setting. Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the course will be held on a remote, synchronous basis. The class will meet every week online at the scheduled time. While remote instruction will limit, to some extent, our ability to interact and discuss class topics, every effort will be made to ensure that students have the opportunity to explore the issues in the course and to receive assistance and guidance from the instructor.
STATEMENT ON DISABILITIES

Rutgers University welcomes students with disabilities into all of the University's educational programs. In order to receive consideration for reasonable accommodations, a student with a disability must contact the appropriate disability services office at the campus where you are officially enrolled, participate in an intake interview, and provide documentation: https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/documentation-guidelines. If the documentation supports your request for reasonable accommodations, your campus's disability services office will provide you with a Letter of Accommodations. Please share this letter with your instructors and discuss the accommodations with them as early in your courses as possible. To begin this process, please complete the Registration form on the ODS web site at: https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/registration-form.

Grading Components:

Grades are based on the following components:

#1 – Small Group Discussion Projects
During the semester, small groups will discuss four labor history videos as well as several topics in class. Responses to questions on the video or topic will be submitted by one student in each group. Each group response = 25 points.
8 x 25 = 200 points = 20% of the grade

#2 – Peer Review/Edit of another Student’s Writing Assignment:
Each peer review = 50 points.
3 x 50 = 150 points = 15% of the grade

#3 – Writing Assignments:
Response Paper/Writing Assignment 1 = 50 points
First Draft of Writing Assignment 2 = 50 points
Final Version of Writing Assignment 2 = 100 points
First Draft of Writing Assignment 3 = 50 points
Final Version of Writing Assignment 3 = 100 points
Total = 350 points = 35% of the grade

Please note: Unless there is prior notification and a legitimate reason, all late writing assignments will be downgraded ½ a letter grade (e.g. A → B+)

#4 – Mid-term Exams:
Each mid-term exam will be based on the questions listed in “Check Your Understanding” for each class. The exams will be “open book.” Each exam = 150 points.
2 x 150 = 300 points = 30% of the grade.
