

INTRODUCTION TO LABOR STUDIES AND EMPLOYMENT RELATIONS

RUTGERS UNIVERSITY 37:575:100:01

Note: This syllabus may be changed or modified as the course proceeds.

Fall 2021

Instructor: Professor John Castella
Email: john.castella@rutgers.edu

Course Overview: This is mainly an asynchronous course designed to give you an overview of various aspects of labor and employment relations, including the perspective of working people and their labor organizations. We will also study the changing nature of work, workers and workers' institutions and organizations; the impact of technological change, the economic cycle, social class, immigration, race, ethnicity, and gender; the role of government in labor policy; the history of unions, the role of unions in politics and challenges the labor movement faces today; and collective bargaining and workers' rights issues.

The class will include lectures, small group discussions, simulations, and media presentations. Quizzes will be administered via Canvas. Consisting of open book, timed, and completed within a particular pre-determined timeframe. Students are encouraged to express their views freely. Respect for the appreciation of different viewpoints will be a guiding principle in this course.

If your participation in this class is delayed for any reason(s) (Health, personal, internet, etc.), you are to notify me via email ASAP. There will be no leniency after the fact. Communication is of the utmost importance.

In this section, you will partake in an individual paper of about five pages regarding the relationship between the COVID-19 economic crisis and particular things you are learning about in the course. See the essay prompt in the shell for details. (See Appendix I)

Textbook: Stephen Sweet and Peter Meiksins. Changing Contours of Work: Jobs and Opportunities in the New Economy. 4th Edition. Sage, 2020. (Please note: the Fourth Edition of this book is quite different from the first and second, and third) ISBN-13: 978-1544305691 ISBN-10: 1544305699

All readings, except for the textbook, are available on Rutgers Canvas, which you may access at <https://tlt.rutgers.edu/canvas>. To log on, enter your Rutgers ID and password in the upper right portion of the page.

- 3 Quizzes at 12% each (36%)
- Short take-home final (10%)

Unit I. The Situation Working People Face Today (September 1- October 3)

Most people have to work. Work shapes our lives and our conceptions of self, and at the same time it provides us with income. When work is insecure, low-paid, or we are not accorded dignity on the job, we suffer. On the other hand, when work is rewarding, it enlarges our capacities, allows us to connect to others, and enables us to contribute to the community at large.

In this unit, you will have a chance to ponder your family's history of work, consider how work has changed in the last 150 years, and explore the relationship of work and social class. A major topic is the prevalence of economic inequality in the United States today.

Week 1, September 1- September 5: Introduction and Course Requirements

- Review the syllabus and make a note of what is required of you.
- Learn how to use Canvas and locate the readings.
- Take the pre-test. Your score does not reflect your grade. It's merely a tool to see if there are any software issues (2% of your grade).
- Post information about yourself for the instructor and other students you will be interacting with throughout the semester (2% of your grade- less if you are late).

Assignments for Week 1:

- Read Sweet & Meiksins, Chapter 1
- Interview at least one parent or grandparent about your family's work history (preferably more). Take notes as it will form the basis of a discussion next week.

Week 2, September 6- September 12: Work and Our Lives

- You and your family's history of work
- The contemporary economic/work situation
- Longer-term trends in work

Assignments for Week 2:

- Participate in Forum 1: You need to post at least twice by Sunday evening, and then another two times by next Sunday evening. Both quantity and quality count, so you may want to post beyond this minimum.

Watch:

- Richard Wilkinson's TED Talk, on the impact of inequality globally.

Unit II: Diversity, Work, and Employee Rights (October 4- October 31)

Employment law is the fundamental law of the workplace. It is essential for you to know something about your rights at work, or lack thereof. And obviously, future managers need to recognize their own rights and how they can, and cannot, treat employees.

Employment law is mutable—it has changed in the past and may change in the future. One of the most significant changes in American employment law occurred in the 1960s in the face of demands for greater equality by race, color, national origin, religion, and gender. Employment opportunities for people of different races and national origins have become more equal under the law since then. However, racial and ethnic divisions and discrimination still persist throughout the workforce.

Gender also matters for employment outcomes, although again, the workplace is much more equal today than in 1964 when the Civil Rights Act was passed. As more women have entered the workplace on a full-time basis, families are increasingly juggling the demands of two (or more) jobs along with the need to care for their families.

Week 6, October 4- October 10: Employment Rights in the United States

- The NLRA (Wagner Act)
- Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) and the Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA)
- Employee at-will
- Exceptions to employee at-will

Unit III Improving Working People's Lives (November 1- December 5)

Union membership grew rapidly in the 1930s-1950s. Collective bargaining between unions and employers in major industries helped raise the standard of living not only for union members but also for the entire workforce. For the past 35 years, however, the labor movement has been in steep decline in the U.S.

In this final unit for the course we will try our hand at collective bargaining during an in-class simulation. We will also explore the reasons why the labor movement has been in decline, as well as some of the newest and most innovative efforts on the part of unions, worker centers, and community organizations to organize workers in the ever-changing economy. The course will end with a discussion of public policies that could reshape the future of work.

Week 10, November 1- November 7: Unions Today in the United States, Part I

- What do unions do?
- Collective bargaining.
- Are unions good or bad for the economy?

Assignments for Week 10:

- Review PowerPoint on what American unions do

Readings:

- Kim Kelly, "What a Labor Union is and How it Works," Teen Vogue, March 12, 2018.
- Bureau of Labor Statistics, "Union Members 2019."

Explore:

- "Learn about Unions" on the AFL-CIO website. This site contains a lot of information from an obviously pro-union perspective.

Watch:

- Reverend Jim Wallis, Sojourners, Testifying on unions and economic inequality, before a Senate subcommittee, 2009.
- Professor Paula Voos, Rutgers, Testifying about the economic effects of unions, before a Senate subcommittee, 2009.
- Professor Carla Katz, Rutgers, "Unions and Individual Voice"

Week 11, November 8- November 14: The Legacy: The New Deal and Labor

- A new relationship between government and working Americans in the 1930s
- Union growth and consolidation in the 1930s-40s
- The CIO and the sit-down strike
- The "New Deal System's" achievements and limitations

Assignments for Week 10:

- First, upload a copy of your post to demonstrate that it is not copied but is your own writing.
- Participate in Forum 5. The first post is due by Thursday evening; additional posts are due Sunday evening.
- You should be starting the COVID-19 paper.
- Review PowerPoint on Unions

Readings:

- Andrew Leonard, "Lessons for Obama from the New Deal," Salon, 2011.
- Jack Metzgar, Striking Steel: Solidarity Remembered (Philadelphia: Temple University Press, 2000). "Getting to 1959," first part pp. 17-39.

Watch:

- Professor Paula Voos, Speaking about the New Deal, WWII and Labor (3 sections)
- A feature video (54 min.), "Mean Things Happening: The Great Depression, Part 5" from PBS also on You-Tube. Please pay particular attention to the second half of the video on steelworkers in Western Pennsylvania.
- A short You-Tube video regarding the early 1930s and the San Francisco General Strike: OPTIONAL
- A short You-Tube video on the sit-down strike and its use by the CIO Autoworkers union in the 1930s: OPTIONAL

Week 12, November 15- November 21: COVID-19 Paper

Assignments for Week 12:

- Those writing a paper have a chance to complete it

- There are no additional reading or assignments this week. However, I recommend you consider starting the Week 13 reading/videos since it is the week with a great deal of content.

Week 13, November 22- November 28: Unions Today (Part II) Union Organizing and Membership

- How unions are formed
- Union membership trends over time
- New tactics of contemporary unions – example, the Fight for $15

Assignments for Week 13:

- First: Take the union knowledge check. This is a quiz that you can take and retake over the course of the week until you get a perfect score and the full number of points (10).
- Review the PowerPoint on union membership
- Submit the COVID-19 Paper via Canvas.

- Adrienne Eaton, Professor, Labor Studies Department, Rutgers, Unions and Informal Work
- Dr. Teresa Boyer, Executive Director, Center for Women and Work, Rutgers, on Work and Family policy

Week 15, December 6- December 12: Course Catch-up

- Submit an outstanding work at a reduced grade

Week 16, December 13- December 19 Final Exam and Course Wrap up

Assignments for Week 16:

- Take the short final exam. It will be available December 13. The exam MUST be submitted by December 19 at 11:59 pm.

Appendix I

COVID-19 Paper- Due November 28, 2021

An individual paper of about five pages regarding the relationship between the COVID-19 economic crisis and particular things you are learning about in the course. Double spaced, Times New Roman 12 font. Your name MUST be on the paper. This is a paper to be written in your own words. You are not to simply answer my questions. My questions are merely a guide. Furthermore, it is to be in essay form.

1. For anyone:

- I. How is the COVID-19 virus (coronavirus) affecting and likely to affect working Americans? Which types of workers are most in danger of infection, of losing significant income, or unemployment? What policies by employers and government can/could help protect working Americans? How do you see the landscape of work changing for working Americans post COVID-19? Do you think more employers will be offering paid sick-leave or shifting to allow telecommuting for their workers? Should laws be changed given changes you predict?

2. For international students (or U.S. students, with permission): How does your country compare to the United States for one of the things we have studied this semester:

- I. For instance, is employment at will the general legal rule governing the employment relationship in your country or do significant differences exist with regard to when/why workers can be fired (discharged) by employers? Explain the law in your country in comparison to the U.S. In general, do workers have more rights in your country than they do in the U.S., about the same, or fewer rights? What led to that?
- II. Or, consider discrimination against certain groups of workers (women, young or old, ethnic/racial/religious minorities, class, disability) in the workplace/labor market (getting certain types of jobs; pay; etc.). What social attitudes in your country exist that create barriers for particular groups? Is your government trying to reduce certain types of discrimination and if so, what are they doing? In discussing this, please be sure to compare the situation in your country to the United States.
- III. Or, for instance, explain how worker representation by labor unions or other organizations works in your country. Do workers have more or less opportunity to be represented by a union than in the U.S. and why is that so? How do legal rights of workers to representation compare to the U.S.?
- IV. Or, for instance, consider migration/immigration. Does your country have a significant group of immigrants and if so, how does the situation they are in compare to that in the U.S.? Is there considerable hostility/discrimination toward immigrants among some of your citizens? What public policy debates about immigration are ongoing now? Or if your country is mostly a source of migration to other countries, where do your citizens mostly migrate to? How are they treated when they arrive to those countries – in comparison to how they are treated when they arrive in the U.S.?
