COURSE DESCRIPTION: Reports of touchdowns, home runs, and overtime goals by professional sports heroes are often overshadowed by stories of strikes, lockouts, and mass resignations. Some of the highest paid employees in American society and their wealthy employers have created a system of labor relations that has failed, as often as it has worked, in serving as a mechanism to collectively establish wages and working conditions. This course will examine this high stakes, high profile adventure in labor-management relations, and assess the impact of professional sports on fans, the public interest, and the economy. Particular emphasis will be focused on negotiation techniques and strategy.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES SET BY DEPARTMENT/SCHOOL:

Labor Studies and Employment Relations Department Learning Outcomes:

- Work productively in teams, in social networks, and on an individual basis (Goal 13).

School of Management and Labor Relations Learning Outcomes:

- Analyze issues of social justice related to work across local and global contexts (Goal V)
- Demonstrate an ability to interact with and influence others in a professional manner, and to effectively present ideas and recommendations (Goal VII).

COURSE READINGS : Assigned readings will be available online and available through canvas.

COURSE PROJECTS: The class will be divided into groups. The number of students in each group will be between 2 and 5.

Project 1: In groups of 2-5, student groups will either be a team or player in a baseball salary arbitration or NBA restricted free agent exercise. Grades will be based on research and presentation.

Project 2: Groups will then be assigned to act as an NFL agent or NFL team and negotiate a player contract. Negotiation style and tactics will be graded, as well as a synopsis of the contract. The synopsis will include a presentation to the class which will simulate a presentation to either the player or the NFL owner, explaining the contract. It should include comparisons of similar players, drafts and factor in individual needs or weaknesses for justification of the contract. The groups will also be required to submit a written summation outlining positions, backup data, etc. Groups will be selected for negotiations in front of the class.
