PERSPECTIVES ON LABOR STUDIES

RUTGERS UNIVERSITY

37:575:395

Spring 2021

Class: Online Hybrid Mondays 3:55pm - 6:55pm

Office Hours: Virtual by appointment

Course Expectations and Requirements

This course is designed to give you a chance to become engaged with the intellectual tradition of Labor Studies and Industrial Relations. You will read classic authors and current professional theory. You will have the opportunity to examine some of the big issues in the field and to decide what you think about them. You will also gain proficiency in important skills: reading for analytical insight, debating ideas, and communicating with others. Students should all be labor studies majors or minors with 15 credits or more in labor studies; if you are not in this category, then you need permission of the instructor to enroll.

Course Hybrid Format

The hybrid format of this course means that we alternate between weeks when we meet synchronously online on Mondays from 3:55pm to 6:55pm, and weeks where we meet asynchronously.

Readings

There is no single text for this course. Readings for each week will be available on the Canvas class web-site.

Relationship to Rutgers Learning Goals

A. This class relates to the overall objectives of a liberal arts education in the social science area. “A Rutgers University SAS graduate will be able to:“

- “Explain and be able to assess the relationship among assumptions, method, evidence, arguments, and theory in social and historical analysis.” (Goal i). Throughout this course, you will be practicing skills in identifying critical assumptions, methods, and types of evidence in relationship to theoretical arguments made by various seminal figures in the field of labor and employment relations.
- “Understand different theories about human culture, social identity, economic entities, political systems, and other forms of social organization.” (Goal m). The theories that you are expected to understand include views from sociology, institutional economics, political science, personnel psychology, human relations, and industrial relations – they form a variety of perspectives relevant to the study of labor. You will demonstrate this understanding through written work and through online discussion of concepts.

- "Apply concepts about human and social behavior to particular questions or situations." (Goal n). You will see how various theories have been applied to particular applied issues – such as, to what degree should worker pay be contingent? You will have the opportunity to argue for your ideas on the application of theory to such questions in labor and employment relations.

Course Expectations

Synchronous Class

All students are expected to attend virtual Monday classes and discuss the readings. Students read book chapters, journal articles and other electronic material available within the Canvas course shell. To prepare for class, students are asked to write answers to written questions. These writing assignments are to be completed before class and posted to the class website under assignments by the due date. Be prepared to discuss the key points of the readings in class and on the forums. It is important to participate in discussions and group activities. Explain your views. Don't be afraid to ask questions! Also listen – don't monopolize the discussion or ignore other views.

Asynchronous Online Threaded Discussion Forums

The forum offers a asynchronous complement to the synchronous sessions on alternate Mondays. You will be required to do the readings but instead of participating in a virtual class discussion, you will respond to questions, and start your own questions on the forum. Of great importance in an online learning environment is the opportunity for students to discuss course topics with each other. Students are required to communicate their insights and thoughts pertaining to reading and listening assignments, while learning from one another in the process.

In general, it is expected that students will engage in the forums at least three times each week. Forums include instructor-generated questions and student-to-student interaction. Forums are asynchronous. This means students are required to participate within a given time frame of 7 days – Tuesday am to Monday 11pm. Students can respond to the Forum questions at anytime during the day or night during that time period.

This is an interactive class – you need to keep current in the reading and forums so that you can interact with others in the class. To do well you need to participate in virtual class discussions, in the forums, and hand in the written questions on the readings on the day that they are due. All students are expected to attend virtual classes and participate in Forums.

Course Evaluation - grades will be based on all of the following:

<table>

Synchronous Class Attendance, Participation & Asynchronous Forums
Written Reading Questions 20%

Mid-term Exam 25%
Final Exam 25%
Total 100%

Assessment of written reading questions

You will be asked to answer a series of questions about the readings for each synchronous Monday class. These assignments are designed to insure that you paid attention to the most important aspects of the reading, and enable in-class discussion. The answers should not be any longer than they need to be; in most cases, 2-3 pages in total should suffice.

Evaluation of these assignments reflect whether or not you have achieved an accurate understanding of the various readings and whether or not you reflect those ideas well in written English. Scores will range from 1-3 (minimally adequate to very good.)

Avoid plagiarism or other violations of academic integrity! Your written questions will be submitted to “Turnitin.com” to insure that your answers are yours alone – not answers from another student, from the web, or another source. Be careful not to “copy” phrases or sentences excessively from the readings. The goal is to put the ideas into your own words!

Assessment of online discussion forums

Asynchronous forum discussions offer a complementary approach to the synchronous classes. You will be required to do your readings but instead of participating in virtual class discussion, you will respond to questions, and start your own questions on the weekly topic.

Of great importance in an online learning environment is the opportunity for students to discuss course topics with each other. Students are required to communicate their insights and thoughts pertaining to reading and listening assignments, while learning from one another in the process. Forum discussions are also a means to identify whether or not the student comprehends required reading assignments.

It is expected that students will engage in the weekly forums at least three times (minimum) each week.

Students can respond to the Forum questions at anytime during the day or night.

As described above, your grade is based upon participation in each weekly forum. The forum is like a class discussion. Each forum has a question(s) to get you started – you may choose to discuss one or all, or to comment on some other aspect of the week’s topic, or to ask a question.

A forum is an interactive discussion and your contribution will be evaluated on a scale (1-3) from minimally adequate to very good.

The score reflects:
• How early & how often you participated. Signing on twice to interact with other students regarding one of the questions is minimally adequate, whereas more extensive participation earns you more points. Earlier participation in the week is rewarded as long as it is thoughtful. The first three students who participate in a substantive way in any forum receive additional credit for this alone.

• Was your participation interactive? Remember, this is a discussion – it is better to demonstrate understanding of the ideas of others before going on to your own opinion than to just “splash” your own ideas onto the page. On the other hand, passively “agreeing” with what others have written doesn’t contribute much to a discussion.

• Were your comments thoughtful and based on the readings? Did they reflect an accurate understanding of the material being discussed or were they riddled with errors regarding the course material.

• Were your opinions backed by personal experience or other types of evidence? Did you draw on readings from other courses, current news, or online sources of information in a manner that contributes to the discussion?

• Were your comments expressed clearly and appropriately? Do they show mastery of persuasive written English? Please do not “flame” in these forums; be courteous of others who will be reading your comments.

The weighting of these components is approximately equal.

Assessment of synchronous class participation.

You will be assessed on your virtual class participation.

Your final grade is based in part on your participation in class discussions during the weeks the class meets together. Your contribution will be evaluated on a scale (1-3) from minimally adequate to very good, based on the quality, thoughtfulness, and frequency of your contributions to class discussions.

Exams

There will also be a mid-term and a final exam, each worth 25% of the final grade.
