Special Information for the Spring 2022 Semester

Because of the coronavirus emergency, Rutgers has decided that the first weeks of classes will be remote this semester. The plan is to return to in-person after that, but there may be more changes in the future. This will be an experiment for all of us, but I think we can do a fairly good job of replicating the in-person class during weeks when we're not physically together. Please bear with me as we work out the details, and don't hesitate to tell me about any problems or if you have suggestions for making things better.

So the work in the course will take place in regular classes in Hardenbergh Hall and in some cases in synchronous Zoom meetings, both on Tuesday afternoons/evenings, as well as asynchronous discussions and assignments in Canvas. I will notify you beforehand each week in an Announcement in our Canvas website about whether we will be meeting in person or on Zoom for the week, as well as any other course changes. Be sure to check the announcements frequently.

I understand that we are all living through difficult times, and I strongly encourage you to contact me at any time about any problems related to COVID or otherwise. Together we will be able to make this work for everyone. If you anticipate any technology issues with accessing and using Zoom or Canvas, contact me immediately so we can take care of any issues.

Overview

History has often been presented as the story of how powerful people have changed human societies over the course of time, with presidents, generals, and the wealthy playing central roles. This course will turn the standard approach on its head and instead look at America and the changes it has undergone through the eyes of working people.

What was life like for machine operators, office workers, sharecroppers, housewives, coal miners, immigrants, teachers, and retail workers during the period of American industrial dominance, and how did their actions affect the course of history? This course will tackle these questions, looking at the development of the labor movement and other movements of "ordinary" people and the enormous changes they have wrought in American history. We will not ignore the important roles of the powerful, but we will examine them together with the actions and ideologies of working-class people and their organizations. And we will look at the world surrounding the labor movement and the social and cultural changes in each period.

We will also study the differing forms and ideologies of numerous workers' organizations to understand why some made a real difference and others had little lasting effect. The labor movement has changed dramatically from the early period of industrialization, when the United States was still primarily an agricultural country, through the explosive growth of mass production in the twentieth century. Our approach will highlight the fact that American history has not been a smooth narrative of progress, but rather that change has come about only after struggle over different views of what path the country should take.

This course satisfies several specific Rutgers learning objectives that are detailed below after the course schedule. Please contact me at daniel.sidorick@rutgers.edu if you have any questions about the course.

Statement on Disability: Rutgers University welcomes students with disabilities into all of the University's educational programs. In order to receive consideration for reasonable accommodations, a student with a disability must contact the appropriate disability services office at the campus where you are officially enrolled, participate in an intake interview, and provide documentation: <https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/documentation-guidelines>. If the documentation supports your request for reasonable accommodations, your campus's disability services office will provide you with a Letter of Accommodations. Please share this letter with your instructors and discuss the accommodations with them as early in your courses as possible. To begin this process, please complete the Registration form on the ODS web site at: <https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/registration-form>.

Statement on Academic Honesty: All work in this course must be your own. Be careful to always cite your sources. For direct quotes, include them within quotation marks and cite appropriately. Since none of us lived during the times we are studying, we must, of course, rely on the words and writings of others, but these must always be cited -- otherwise the use of those words is considered plagiarism. Any assignments containing the work of others and not cited properly will receive a grade of zero, and could result in an F for the course. Please contact me if you have any questions or concerns on this point. In accordance with department policy, student papers will be submitted through Turnitin. Students agree that by taking this course all required papers may be subject to submission for textual similarity review to Turnitin.com for the detection of plagiarism. All submitted papers will be included as source documents in the Turnitin.com reference database solely for the purpose of detecting plagiarism of such papers. Use of the Turnitin.com service is subject to the Usage Policy posted on the Turnitin.com site. Students who do not agree should contact the course instructor immediately.

Student Requirements

1. Class participation (16% of your grade). Your active participation in class is essential for the success of the class. This part of your grade is based on attendance, coming to class on time and prepared by finishing all readings before class, and taking an active part in class discussions and activities. This semester your participation will take place both in regular classes and in Zoom. Contact the instructor if there are problems affecting your ability to attend a class.
2. Online discussion forums and Canvas assignments (14% of grade). To supplement our class sessions, we will also have discussions and other assignments in Canvas. In the discussion forums you will post responses to questions and to other students' postings by the deadlines listed, basing your comments on class readings and other materials. Often the forum topic will be used as a starting point for in-class discussions in the following class.
3. Mid-Term Exam (15% of grade). The mid-term exam will consist of essay questions and identification questions (people, events, concepts, etc.), and will be based on lectures, readings, films, and discussions.
4. Final Exam (15% of grade). The final exam will consist of essay questions and identification questions (people, events, concepts, etc.), and will be based on lectures, readings, films, and discussions, covering the entire course but concentrated on the second half of the semester.
5. Class paper 1 (20% of grade). For a paper on an assigned topic, you will submit a draft version and later a final version (the draft is required in order to submit a final version). The draft will be reviewed by the instructor.
6. Class paper 2 (20% of grade). For a paper on an assigned topic, you will submit a draft version and later a final version (the draft is required in order to submit a final version). The draft will be reviewed by another student using a Guided Peer Review. Your review of another student's paper will be part of your grade.

Note: The general policy on late assignments is that all late assignments will be downgraded one letter grade (e.g. A to B) and will not be accepted more than one week after due date. Contact the instructor immediately if you experience or anticipate any problems and we will make arrangements as necessary.

The best way to attain a grade you are happy with is to come to class, pay attention, take notes (from lectures and readings and videos), and participate in discussions, both in class (in-person and Zoom) and Canvas!

Required Text

The following required book is available for purchase or rental or free online:

Rosenzweig, et al., Who Built America?: Working People and the Nation's History, Volume II: Since 1877, 3rd ed., Bedford / St. Martin's Press, 2008. (Referred to as WBA in following pages.)

The textbook is available for free as a series of pdf files in Canvas. You may use these in place of purchasing the textbook, but, if you are able, I recommend getting the actual textbook.

All other readings listed below will be available on the Canvas system or via the Web. In order to participate actively in discussions, you must complete the readings by the day that they are listed on the syllabus. Be sure to read the non-textbook readings as well as the textbook -- they give additional in-depth insights that may be missing in the textbook, and content from both textbook and supplemental readings will be included in exams and papers.

Class Schedule

Changes may be made in the schedule and readings -- be sure to check Canvas and your email often.
