INTRODUCTION

Labor, Democracy, and Social Justice

Our course exists to examine the relationship between labor and democracy in the United States from the colonial period to the Civil War and Reconstruction. To fully appreciate the history of human rights in that setting, we study how slavery and servitude as well as eviction of indigenous peoples have impacted human rights. Our timeline highlights activism and rebellions that brought communities together seeking freedom from exploitive labor practices and policies. Abolition demanding slavery be ended and suffragism demanding equal treatment for women respectively are movements for justice whose implications for democracy our course investigates in a series of readings and case studies.

Democracy in the Classroom

In this syllabus, students’ work is recognized as labor that is best empowered by democracy in the classroom. Working in groups, students assume a voice developing our midterm and final examinations, as we interrogate the history of work. Students’ engagement is, therefore, our course’s framework for a democracy in-micro that gives power to students’ abilities to learn skills crucial to law, commerce, and social justice. Ultimately, our course exists to instill students with confidence in the value of their own intellectual and cultural work as learners. Ours is a curriculum that elicits what students want from their work lives and from their careers in the context of the labor history that we study and interpret. Students’ collaboration is, consequently, crucial and premiered upon conversations and reasoning as well as writing that anticipate what students want for the world that they and future generations will inherit.

A Writing Intensive Course

Our course is a writing intensive curriculum that requires students to deliberate and to compose their opinions on critical controversies enunciated in the historical documents that we study in their social and cultural context. This writing process permits students to reflect upon what they have learned from history and to formulate, extend, and fully express what they believe regarding history's meaning in the present. To promote this reflective encounter, the assignments for our class will require students to develop a series of essays framed by students' questions and interests on matters of ethical importance as we consider what history means today.

It is important to note "that all work submitted in a course, academic research, or other activity is the student's own and created without the aid of impermissible technologies, materials, or collaborations (Rutgers University Code of Conduct). Thus, the use of Chat GPT and similar technologies is not permitted in composing essays for our class. Our Canvas site's policy on use of artificial intelligence will be reviewed and confirmed by our learning community during Week Two of our course.

COURSE READINGS:

Our materials can be found in the Modules Section of our Canvas site, including:

1. Who Built America?: Working People and the Nation's History, 3rd ed., Bedford / St. Martin's Press, 2008. (Referred to as WBA? in the following pages of the syllabus.) This is the textbook for the course. All assigned readings from the textbook are available on Canvas.

2. Other Required Readings: In addition to the textbook, the material posted in the Modules section of the Canvas site comprises our topics, including primary and secondary sources that are vital to understanding each period covered by the course. Our schedule herein is aligned to the assignments and topics framed in our Canvas site according to required readings for each week of the Academic Calendar.

COURSE STRUCTURE

The modality of the course is in-person, and all meetings will take place at the assigned location. Our weekly meetings on Tuesday evenings from 5:40 to 8:40 p.m. are compulsory and will be crucial to conveying the essential activities of the course. Typically, classes begin with students working in discussion groups; followed by the entire class sharing critical questions and viewing films, sharing readings, and/or responding to issues relevant to our writing assignments. Class ends with a summation of topics addressed and practical matters of deadlines, research, and writing responsibilities that are necessary and impending. Attention is imperative during these activities.

COURSE LEARNING OBJECTIVES

This course fulfills the learning objectives required by Rutgers University core curriculum as well as goals and objectives articulated in School of Management & Labor Relations programming. To learn more about these objectives, please click here.

ASSIGNMENTS

Mid-Term and Final Examinations

Examination Essay Questions:

As a feature of students' participation in class discussions and activities, a weekly question that students wish to be asked on the Midterm and Final Examinations will be due on Saturdays and will figure as 33% of the Participation Grade. These questions will be the basis of our examinations. Please see rubric for Examination Essay Questions at the end of the syllabus.

The examinations (Midterm and Final) will each ask students to write short essays responding to questions of opinion that have emerged in our reading and discussion of the history of issues such as the human rights of workers, their families, and communities. Attention will be paid to a series of themes related to concepts of accuracy, truth, and justice in the course of our deliberations each week. Students will play a defining role in selecting questions that they wish to be asked on our midterm and final exams.

Students will receive the Exam Questions for the Mid-Term Exam on February 28th
And will Submit Examination Essay Answers on March 22nd

Students will receive the Exam Questions for the Final Exam on April 26th
And will Submit Examination Essay Answers on May 10th

Essay #1—(Rough Draft Due: March 1st , Final Draft Due: March 8th)

Bryan Stevenson's film, Slavery to Mass Incarceration, contends that reparations should be paid to individuals, families, and communities who were traumatized and exploited by the labor codes and practices established in the period after 1492. Georgetown University as well as corporations that have profited from slavery provide examples of reparations initiatives.

Write a five-page paper that addresses the question of whether reparations will, finally, serve justice. Be specific about the particular losses that must be compensated in a particular situation and the form those reparations should take. Include references to specific events in the past and deadlines for reconciliation in the present and future. In your response, be sure to base your claims on materials from our assigned readings. You are not required to read additional sources for this assignment; however, you are permitted to research incidents not addressed by our course and to include that research in your essay.

All papers should follow standard grammar, punctuation and citation methods in conformance with APA Guidelines.

ASSIGNMENTS (Continued)

Essay #2—(Rough Draft Due: April 19th , Final Draft Due: April 26th)

“My Life Is My Message.” –Mahatma Gandhi

Biography is the account of a person’s life. As a narrative, it assumes the responsibility of explaining the period when a person lived as well as the places, the cultures, the organizations and the ideas that shaped an individual’s life. Furthermore, it examines how a person influenced family and community and, by contrast, how personal relationships influenced her or him or them. That person’s accomplishments as an actor or as a witness are important features of a biography.

The assignment for Essay #2 is that you write a short biography of a person who lived and worked in the United States between 1618 and 1865, explaining how and why the message of the person’s life that you have selected provides testimony witnessing the injustices confronting workers of his or her or their historical period.

You may not select a famous leader but must describe a person who was a worker in a particular occupation, industry or social movement that gave meaning to work and workers’ destiny in history.

Biographical Essay Requirements: The Five-Page Biographical Essay on the Life of a person who lived in the period from 1618 to 1865 must include the following:

- Statement of the Message of the subject’s Life & Reason Why You Chose the person.
- Movements or Persons that Influenced your Subject.
- Labor Issue(s) that affected your subject.
- Events that the subject witnessed.
- Decisions or actions or ideas that best express the subject’s Message.
- Conclusion stating why your subject is relevant today.
- At least three different sources grounding your subject in the history of their time.
- Works Cited.

Step One: March 22nd

Identify Subject for Biography: October 30th

Write a paragraph explaining your Choice. Explain the person that you have chosen for the biographical essay. “What dilemma does your chosen figure present to your mind?” This step asks the student to: (1) Identify someone; (2) identify a person in a difficult position in history, and (3) say what the student thinks the predicament is.

Then, how does the student think the selected person could be good for us to study, so we may think about workers in such a position?

ASSIGNMENTS (Continued)

Step Two: March 29th

List of Biographical sources:

Select and list three-to-five sources that you think speak to your figure's predicament. Each source selected should clarify, or offer a new way of thinking about, your figure's struggle. Don't just use a source to confirm what you already think. For each source you choose, write a statement of exactly 35 words saying how this source stands to help you understand the chosen figure's struggle.

Primary sources are journals, letters or speeches, or actual artifacts such as period clothing, tools or medical records.

Secondary sources are full-length biographies, critical commentaries, films and other works of art such as films or sculptures. Secondary sources usually appear after the appearance of primary sources.

Step Three: April 5th

Develop an Outline of a life: This will be a chart or timeline showing the events, labor issues, movements and/or personalities that influenced the subject of your biography.

Step Four: April 19th

Submit the Rough Draft of your Biographical Essay.

Step Five: April 26th

Submit the Final Draft of Biographical Essay.

Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion

This is an inclusive learning environment that is welcoming of all people and perspectives, including those of diverse races, religions, ethnicities, ages, gender identities and sexual orientations. If you go by a name or gender that is different from the one on official Rutgers documents, please let me know so that I can use the proper name and pronouns.

Cheating/Plagiarism

Students in this class and in all courses at Rutgers University are expected to uphold the highest standards of academic integrity. Cheating, plagiarism in written work, receiving and providing unauthorized assistance, and sabotaging the work of others are among the behaviors that constitute violations of the Academic Integrity Policy. You are expected to be familiar with this policy. If you have questions about specific assignments, be sure to check with the instructor. The Academic Integrity Policy defines all forms of cheating and the procedures for dealing with violations. You should be familiar with this policy. The trust between the instructor and the class depends on your acceptance of this essential principle of behavior in the University. Do your own work and do not provide unauthorized assistance to others and you will find this course more rewarding.

STATEMENT ON DISABILITIES

Rutgers University welcomes students with disabilities into all of the University's educational programs. In order to receive consideration for reasonable accommodations, a student with a disability must contact the appropriate disability services office at the campus where you are officially enrolled, participate in an intake interview, and provide documentation: <https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/documentation-guidelines>. If the documentation supports your request for reasonable accommodations, your campus's disability services office will provide you with a Letter of Accommodations. Please share this letter with your instructors and discuss the accommodations with them as early in your courses as possible. To begin this process, please complete the Registration form on the ODS web site at: <https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/registration-form>.

EVALUATION

You will write two essays this semester, on topics to be announced. Each essay accounts for 20% of your final grade. You will write several drafts of each. All are mandatory, as is participation in peer review. There will also be two essay-based exams (a Midterm and a Final); each of these exams will be worth 20% of your grade (see rubric on page 15 of this syllabus). Please see the descriptions of your Essay Assignments and Examinations at the end of this syllabus. In addition, your participation in our class counts for 20% of your grade, which will include your involvement in class discussions and activities such as your developing and posting weekly essay questions for our Midterm and Final Exams.

	Grades
Participation	20%
Essay #1 (on Reparations)	20%
Essay #2 (Biography)	20%
Midterm Exam	20%
Final Exam	20%

COURSE PARTICIPATION.

Students are required to attend weekly meetings and to participate in discussions of films, readings, and other materials posted on the Course Canvas site and identified by the Syllabus as “required reading.”

Each week every student will be required to post an “Exam Question” that distills our discussions of the topics during the week. The purpose of the Exam Questions is to promote reflection that prompts short essays on both the Midterm and Final Exams (see the rubric for exam question in our course syllabus). Both Midterm and Final Exams will be made up of questions posted by students.

Thus, students' participation grade (20%) will be based upon the important weekly submission of Exam Question that emerge from class deliberations and considerations and discussions of issues crucial to understanding the history of work. The questions will be developed and shared on our Canvas Module page. Every student must submit an Exam Question to our Canvas site by Saturday of each week (see deadline dates on Assignments page) and will respond to another student's questions within two days. First Exam Question is due: February 1st.

Participation Grade Will Be Based Upon:

Attendance and Contribution to Class Meetings (33%)

Exam Questions (33%)

Final Meeting/Correspondence with Instructor (34%)

At the conclusion of course (November/December), instructor may review class documents and assess students' participation by interviewing students about their experience composing questions for our Midterm & Final Exams and writing short essays to answer the Exam Questions as well as the longer Essays (on Reparations and Biography) that are required for our course.

Lateness Policy

All late assignments will be marked down. One grade will be deducted for every 24-hour period (or portion thereof) your paper is late. That is, a B paper will turn into a C paper if it is up to 24 hours late, and into a D paper if it is up to 48 hours late, etc. While the drafts are not assigned letter grades, failing to turn them or turning them in late will have the same effect on the final draft you hand in for a grade.

You must complete all written assignments in order to receive credit for this course.

We will turn back all assignments in a timely manner. If we do not turn back your assignment, it is your job to bring this to our attention. If you believe we have not recorded a grade for an assignment you have turned in, you must clear this up during the semester. After the semester is over, we will not be able to consider claims that you turned in an assignment if we have no record of it.
