Course Overview

Organizing is how people come together to pursue their collective interests and win. Organizing is moving people into Relationship, Reflection, Teams, Leadership and Action in order to:

- Build their collective power
- Take greater control over their own lives
- Alter the relations of power
- Achieve shared goals

It is a life skill that all of us need!

We will learn how to bring people together, build a base and take action to win on the issues we care about. We will ask: what is power, how does power operate and how do organizations build it and leverage it to win?

The curriculum and examples are drawn from my many years working as an organizer and trainer before and after entering academia and from classics of organizing, political science, sociology, management, urban studies, economics, public policy and anthropology that shed light on key ideas. I'm always adding to it and welcome your suggestions.

The course will cover the building blocks of organizing including:

- Building the Organization
- Strategy, Campaigns and Tactics
- Forms of Power
- Strategic Research and Power Analysis
- Effective Actions
- Building Teams and Coaching
- Public Narrative

We will read both practical and scholarly work on these topics and explore them through class discussions, exercises, roleplays and a participation in a campus campaign.

The Learning Objectives of this course are to:

- 1) Examine critically the theory and practice of organizing
- 2) Learn a set of concrete organizing skills
- 3) Analyze the role of direct action organizing as an empowerment strategy in disadvantaged and marginalized communities and think about its relationship to broader movements for social change
- 4) Engage in dialogue and debate around issues of power, inequality, organizing, and politics
- 5) Understand theoretical perspectives on concepts related to organizing drawn from political science, sociology, history, anthropology, urban planning, and political theory
- 6) Write an essay that puts forward an argument

Course Requirements:

Weekly Reaction Papers:

In order to help prepare for discussions during class, students will answer and submit the questions in that week's module

- These papers must be handed in on the day they are due
- You have the option to skip THREE weeks of your choice.

Organizing Practicum:

In order to receive full credit for this course (3+1=4 credits), you can choose an organizing organization and actively participate in it over the course of the semester including planning, organizing and participating in at least one action or conducting ten one-on-one meetings or helping to build and coordinate a turf-based or functional team in an organization. The Teaching Assistants and I are available to help with matching you to organizations.

Students need to register for the 4th credit within the first few weeks. You must choose an organization and notify me of your choice by February 13 and begin working with the group from February 20 on. You will submit one paragraph of a description of what you have been doing and your reflections on it per week with your homework, beginning February 20th.

If you plan to sign up for the 4th credit, you must get approval from me and then e-mail Bill Bailey at the LSER Credit Office (William.bailey@rutgers.edu) to register for 470 Community Engaged Activity in Labor Studies

Specific community organizations and unions that are partnering with the class: AAUP/AFT, New Labor, Make the Road NJ, 1199 New Jersey, Workers United/ Starbucks Campaign, Brandworkers, New Jersey Organizing Project (South Jersey,), NJPIRG.

Essays: In lieu of a mid-term and a final, students will write two short essays based upon their reflections on the main issues and themes that emerged in the readings, lectures, role plays, exercises and class discussions. Please remember that you MUST substantively refer to at least 4 different class readings pertaining to the question and you cannot just mention the article, you must engage with it). Sometimes students don't take the time to find the readings that are germane to the essay question and just take random readings from the syllabus. Don't do that!

Spend some time going through the reading list and choosing the readings you will discuss carefully. Also, I advise making an outline, writing a first draft and then revising to a polished second draft.

NOTE: Students needing accommodation should talk to me about doing an oral exam if they feel this is needed. Please be advised that this does not mean that students can speak from the top of their heads, it would require creating an outline of the material they are going to cover (readings, class presentations and power points, role plays and exercises, group discussions, etc.) and points they are going to make.

Essay #1: What is power in an organizing for social change context and what is the fundamental source of power in organizing? What is the relationship between power and social change?

Your essay should cover the following questions: What is the difference between “power with” and “power over”? What are the “faces of power” and what are the forms of power that people can draw upon as they plan and carry out their strategies? What is the difference between strategy and tactics and what does it mean to “always be able to locate the power behind a tactic?”

DUE: March 13, 2025

Essay #2: What is organizing?

Your essay should cover and provide examples for these questions: What is the difference between organizing and mobilizing? What is the difference between constituents and allies? How do organizations recruit and then retain members? What have you learned from readings, class presentations, exercises and our class campaign about why people join organizations and what it takes to effectively keep them involved? What are circles of commitment and pathways of participation? Why and in what ways are teams important in organizing?

DUE: May 12, 2025

Class Campaign and Attendance

You will also be working with peers from this class and the previous class on a campaign to improve university bus service. Over the course of the semester, to gain practical experience in recruitment, campaign strategy and tactics, students will be participating in the OverRide campaign to improve bus service at RU. What does this require? Conducting research and helping to design overall campaign strategy and tactics, participating in planning sessions in class, identifying opportunities to call attention to the campaign, helping to recruit students to join the campaign, taking an active role in campaign activities including: participating in meetings, actions and designing and carrying out strategies to recruit students to do so.

Class meets only once a week and we cover a lot. When you miss class, you miss out on the Over Ride campaign, presentations, role plays, exercises and group discussions that are essential to learning how to organize—it’s not something you can make up and I can’t re-run everything I covered in class just for you, that’s why attendance is mandatory. You should have no unexcused absences, if you have more than two you will receive a zero for the class campaign/attendance portion of your grade. Of course, I will understand if you are sick, have an emergency or family crisis if you communicate with me about it in a timely manner. Do not schedule meetings or appointments during class time. If you don't explain your absence, understand that I will count it as unexcused. Believe it or not, I've had students miss almost the entire semester's worth of classes and then show up and ask if they can hand in the homework and pass the class!

You must also arrive at class on time. I know the buses make it hard, I know parking is difficult and mass transit can be delayed, please build that in so you can make it on time. I have some students who are habitually late and it is not fair to me or to your classmates who have figured out how to get here on time and it interferes with the one-on-ones that I begin every class with.

- The richness of our larger conversations will be dependent upon you bringing thoughts and ideas to the larger discussion and taking part in the OverRide campaign. Please don't be a "free rider", take part in our conversations and in your small groups.
- Each week at the start of class, students will engage in a one-on-one conversation with each other. I'll put a question up on the screen for you to discuss.
