COURSE DESCRIPTION: The entertainment industry in the United States is a multi-billion dollar enterprise. The business is comprised of a diverse labor force and constantly evolving ways to deliver content to consumers. Technological change has historically made employee relations in this field volatile. This course will explore employee-employer dynamics of specific industries such as stage, radio, television and movies.

This class will provide the basic outline for the multifaceted employment relationships in the entertainment industry. The class will focus on employment relations in the entertainment industry, including the labor / management relationship as well as the relationship between management and talent. Whether you are the talent, or representing the talent as a union, agent, or manager role or an employer seeking to retain the services of anyone in the entertainment field, this class is a must.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS: 1) final exam, 25% of grade, 2) midterm exam, 25% of grade 3) class participation, 15% of grade 4) negotiations project, 10% of grade and 4) assigned topic paper, 25% of grade.
The assigned topic paper will require each student to write a 5 to 10 page paper. The subject of the paper will be a labor union representing individuals in the entertainment industry. Students will be expected to provide a brief history of the union and to discuss recent rounds of bargaining for a collective bargaining agreement.

The class project will consist of students being put into groups and each group being assigned the role of either representing an actor or representing a studio and negotiating a contract of services. The group will be required to present the final contract and then explain their position to the class as if the class were either the actor they represented or the studio heads.
