Black Workers in American Society

In this class we will examine the evolving position of black workers in the U.S. economy, how it has changed at key points throughout U.S. history to the present day, and how access to opportunities in the labor market is informed by racial stratification in the larger society. The goal of the course is to challenge common notions of how people succeed in the labor market and to explore how systemic patterns of exclusion limit opportunities for blacks. The course will focus on structural explanations for racial inequality in the labor market rather than purely individualistic ones. We will examine the social constructs of race and class to understand how blacks at all levels in the labor market face common challenges in navigating the labor market.

Grading will be based on the following:

- 10 Attendance and Participation
- 10 Ice-breaker
- 10 Questions (Online Harvard IAT Test)
- 10 Debate
- 10 Interview
- 20 Mid-term
- 30 Final

Please note that excessive unexcused absences will lower your grade. Assignments must be typed, emailed and submitted on time.

Laptop/Recording Policy:

Students are permitted to bring and use a laptop computer in class, for taking notes and viewing class readings. However, please do not engage in laptop-related activities that may distract other students. Course Materials:

Course reading materials and questions may be found on Sakai under "Resources," and "Announcements." The instructor reserves the right to supplement, substitute, and/or modify the listed reading selections.

Course SAS Learning Objectives:

Goal A: Analyze the degree to which forms of human difference shape a person's experiences of and perspectives on the world.

- How racial categorization, created through the social construction of race affects one's position in the labor market and consequently produces racial labor market inequality. Through this approach we will examine the socioeconomic dimension of the claim that although race is not a scientifically "real" concept, it is real in its consequences.

Goal D: Analyze issues of social justice across local and global contexts.

- Develop an understanding of concepts such as hierarchy, power and hegemony to developing a working knowledge of social change, particularly one that uses a complex, nuanced analysis of a social problem to devise effective policies to end social and economic inequality.

Goal I: Explain and be able to assess the relationship among assumptions, method, evidence, arguments, and theory in social and historical analysis.

- View different approaches and strategies to build arguments by critiquing the author's claims presented and compare them to other readings/authors. Draw linkages and distinctions by taking apart the author's thesis, arguments and supporting evidence. To build your own arguments and supporting them.

Goal M: Understand different theories about human culture, social identity, economic entities, political systems and other forms of social organization.

- We will use the idea that the labor market, as well as society at large, is organized in such a way that it can be examined by using a structural approach.
- Through this lens we can view black's position in the US. Economy as part of a racial structure fortified by mechanisms such as institutional discrimination, exclusion, and access.
- This idea will be explored through multiple media, films, assigned readings to represent a variety of perspectives, class discussions, and hypothetical situations designed to incorporate real life experiences in group exercises.

Goal N: Apply concepts about human and social behavior to particular questions or situations.

- We will approach issues such as the labor market consequences of persistent school segregation, resistance to integration, affirmative action, racial disparities in unemployment, the persistence of racial wage gap, amidst a shrinking education gap, using concepts such as social structure, social closure, hegemony, bias, and homophily.

Avoid plagiarism or other violations of academic integrity! Be careful not to “copy” phrases or sentences excessively from the readings. The goal is to put the ideas into your own words!
