Course Description:

This is a course on the history of the American labor movement since the beginning of the twentieth century. We will study how unions over the decades have struggled to improve workers' lives. Topics will include industrialization; immigration; racial, ethnic and gender divisions in the working class; the Great Depression and the two world wars; labor law; labor and politics; the rise of unions for government workers; and the decline of unions in the private sector of the economy. The course will provide students writing experience, by requiring two short papers.

The course is designed for students to:

- understand the bases and development of human and societal endeavors across time and space
- explain the development of some aspect of a society or culture over time, including the history of ideas or history of science
- employ historical reasoning to study human endeavors
- understand different theories about human culture, social identity, economic entities, political systems, and other forms of social organization
- communicate complex ideas effectively, in standard written English, to a general audience.
- respond effectively to editorial feedback from peers, instructors and/or supervisors through successive drafts and revisions
- communicate effectively in modes appropriate to a discipline or area of inquiry
- evaluate and critically assess sources and use the conventions of attribution and citation correctly
- analyze and synthesize information and ideas from multiple sources to generate new insights.

Texts:

1 - Who Built America: Working People and the Nation's History, Volume Two: 1877 to the Present, Third Edition, Bedford/St. Martin's (2008) ("WBA")

2 - Robert H. Zieger, Timothy J. Minchin, Gilbert J. Gall, American Workers, American Unions: The 20th and Early 21st Centuries, Fourth Edition, Johns Hopkins University Press (2014) ("AWAU")

Also, there is a “Supplemental Readings” (“SR”) document posted on Sakai.

Course Requirements:

Reading is assigned for each class. Students are required to do the reading in advance of class and be prepared to discuss it during class.

Students will be required to write two short papers. Students will also be required to peer review the papers of other students.

There will also be two quizzes and a final in-class exam. Attendance for the final exam days is required; a doctor’s note or other documented reason for absence will be required before absence from class on the exam day is excused.

Grades will be based on attendance, participation in class and grades on the papers, quizzes and the exam.
