Course Description

This class focuses on labor relations systems in professional sports in the United States. The course will provide a basic understanding of labor relations and labor law, as well as the business of sports. We will learn the history of professional leagues, the unions and the bargaining history for the four major sports (Baseball, Hockey, Football and Basketball) and others. Students are expected to participate in group and individual activities to learn about the collective bargaining process, and the operation of the various labor agreements in regards to salaries, discipline and free agency. As an online course, material will be covered in videos, online lectures, group projects and posted discussion questions. There will be two simultaneous activities that require students to be logged in at the same time to participate, along with one "test" date. The specific dates will be set based on the student questionnaires, due during the first week.

EXAMS:

In order to remain compliant with the federal requirement of student authentication in online courses, you will take your exams in this course using Proctortrack software, a remote proctoring service. For this course, there is NO charge for the use of Proctortrack.

Detailed instructions on how to use Proctortrack are provided under course home. You will be asked in the first two weeks to take an "onboarding" pretest. This quiz will allow you to insure that you do not have problems later when its time to take a graded exam. We recommend you use Mozilla Firefox. You must have a video camera and be able to take the exam in a private space.

Questions and requests for tech support during the authentication and verification process should be addressed by calling (888) 326-5219(888) 326-5219 X3 or by going to www.proctortrack.com. Questions regarding course materials and exam questions should be directed to your instructor. Equipment needed:

USB Headset with a microphone (other types don't work well); please do not attempt to use an "open" microphone built into a personal computer because it leads to feedback that will bother other students. You also need a personal computer with broadband connection. An I-pad, other tablet, or a smart-phone will not be sufficient.

Covered Texts

- All texts will be assigned on eCollege. There is no textbook for this course. Texts will be drawn from a variety of sources, including the following:
 - Staudohar, Paul. Playing for Dollars. Labor Relations and the Sports Business. IRL Press, 1996.
 - Yost, Mark. Tailgating, Sacks, and Salary Caps: How the NFL Became the Most Successful Sports League in History. Kaplan Publishing, 2006.
 - Clark, Paul; Delaney, John and Frost, Ann. Collective Bargaining in the Private Sector (LERA Research Volumes). IRL Press, 2002.
 - Rosner, Scott and Kenneth L. Shropshire. The Business of Sports. Jones & Bartlett Learning, 2004.

- Marvin Miller. A Whole Different Ball Game: The Inside Story of the Baseball Revolution. I.R. Dee, 2004.
- Glenn M. Wong. Essentials of Sports Law. ABC-CLIO, 2009.
- Sloane, Arthur A and Fred Witney. Labor Relations. Pearson/Prentice Hall, 2007.
- Other texts will also be assigned.

Course Requirements

- Participate in three synchronous online activities with members in your group
This requires that ALL students have a USB powered-headset.
- Participate in online class activities including two online forums
- Participate in a small group presentation covering a specific labor action in sports
- Midterm and Final written exam, administered online
- Journal questions, and knowledge checks as assigned
- Regularly check your eCollege Course Site at eCollege.Rutgers.edu. You will receive announcements from eCollege at your Rutgers e-mail address, so remember to check that account frequently. I will often assign additional readings as the course progresses.

Policies

- Papers that exhibit significant errors of punctuation, grammar, spelling, or syntax (generally, three or more errors per page) risk failing.
- Papers and exams will be evaluated using Turnitin. Significant plagiarism risks receiving a failing grade for that assignment, the class, and other sanctions
- You are required to review and abide by the University's Policy on Academic Integrity. This can be found online at <http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/integrity.shtml>

Grading
