Points have no absolute meaning, and in the end, I will use my judgment in translating points into grades for the course. Implicitly, that means that grades are “curved” in the sense that they are comparative. The comparison is both to other students taking the class this semester and with those who took the class in the past.

Grading rubrics for assignments and discussions are available on Canvas.

Extra credit is not offered in this course.

Family occupational safety and health history paper

A paper that chronicles your family occupational safety and health work history will be assigned early in the semester. The papers will be shared in assigned discussion groups.

Late paper submission:

- 25% point deduction up to one week after the due date
- 50% point deduction more than one week and up to two weeks after the due date
- No points for late submissions in excess of two weeks

Online discussions

In online discussions students interact through a series of posts about a particular topic. Students can communicate their questions, insights, and conclusions in a threaded discussion pertaining to a topic, as well as learn from one another in the process. Threaded discussions are also a means for me to identify whether or not you comprehend the course content. Discussions include responding to instructor and student generated questions.

The Online Group Discussion Guidelines and Grading Rubric document (available on the course site in Canvas) provides an in-depth explanation of how to successfully participate in an online discussion and how the discussions are evaluated. Your posts will be evaluated on a scale from minimally adequate to exceptional, with more typical responses being in the good to excellent range.

As you review the class schedule, please note that there are seven graded discussions held over the semester. Although the discussions are held online and are asynchronous (in other words, you don’t have to participate in a forum in “real time”) they still require a weekly time commitment. In this way, the discussions are much like signing up for a class with mandatory attendance. You are required to post on the discussion site multiple times during the week of study. A discussion may require preparing a critique, preparing a brief topic/issue presentation, or conducting online research to share with your assigned group. Failing to participate in a discussion during the open period will result in a major point deduction (50% or more) or zero points, depending on your participation history. If you think this is a commitment that you cannot realistically make, then this class is not a good choice for you. Note: One of the eight discussions may be skipped. If you choose to participate in all 8 discussions, the lowest discussion score will be dropped from the grade book at the end of the semester.
Exams

Two non-cumulative exams include true/false, matching, multiple choice, fill-in-the-blank and short answer questions.

The exams must be taken online in the Canvas course site during the open period (refer to course calendar).

Make-up exams will be allowed only for legitimate, documented, and verified reasons. Make-up exams without an approved excuse will be assessed a 25% penalty (50 points).

Class participation

Keep current and avoid being late - This is an interactive class; you need to keep current in the readings, viewings, and discussion forums to effectively interact with others in the class. You should inform me of serious personal emergencies that arise such as a hospitalization that makes it impossible to get online. Because this class does not meet face-to-face, a routine illness (such as a cold, stomach virus or "not feeling well") is not considered a valid excuse for failing to participate in the class. Except for a truly serious illness, you are expected to log in to view course material, submit assignments, participate in online discussions, and take exams.

With the exception of a military deployment, work related scheduling conflicts are not considered an emergency, nor is a problem with your personal computer. There are many ways to get online in hotels, at campus computing facilities, public libraries, or cafes. Also, with the Canvas app for your smart phone you can attend class without a computer.

A scheduling conflict related to athletic participation is not considered an acceptable excuse for late submission of an assignment, absence from a discussion or failing to take an exam. Athletes should plan the study week to accommodate practice, events, and event related travel.

An online class provides welcome schedule flexibility, but you are responsible for managing your time and participating in class every week no matter what else is going on in your life. In general, I recommend that you sign into the class at least four times a week and that you check your Rutgers email every day.

Contribute to the learning environment - You are expected to contribute to creating an environment that fosters respect and civility by adherence to class norms for discussion, debate, and all interpersonal interaction.

Course communications - You are responsible for accessing course materials on Canvas and participating as instructed. Students must maintain a functioning Rutgers e-mail address and should check it frequently throughout the study week for class announcements or updates.

Instructor communications - It is your responsibility to promptly reply to emails that request a response. You should inform me of emergencies or problems that are likely to affect your participation or performance in the course. The sooner I am informed, the easier it will be to develop a plan for you to keep up with the course work.

Class cancellations – Because this is a fully online course, Rutgers class cancellations will not affect participation. In the event of wide-spread loss of power and Internet connectivity (e.g. power outages due to a hurricane or a blizzard), assignments should be completed off-line according to the syllabus. Loss of power or Internet service at your residence or problems with your personal computer are not acceptable reasons for failing to participate in class.

Academic Integrity

Academic Integrity is vital to the mission of Rutgers, to education at Rutgers and membership in the Rutgers community. It is a core value that supports trust among students, and between students and teachers. It is also a shared value; administration, faculty and students each play a vital part in promoting, securing and nurturing it.

Academic dishonesty is not an individual act that affects only the students involved. It violates communal trust, impacts other members of the community, and is an offense against scholarship. For this reason, any instance of cheating or plagiarism will be dealt with harshly.

Honesty matters. As a shared value, administration, faculty and students each play a vital part in promoting, securing and nurturing it. See the Rutgers Academic Code and Academic Oath at: http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/

From the Office of Disability Services

Rutgers University welcomes students with disabilities into all of the University's educational programs. In order to receive consideration for reasonable accommodations, a student with a disability must contact the appropriate disability services office at the campus where you are officially enrolled, participate in an intake interview, and provide documentation: https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/documentation-guidelines. If the documentation supports your request for reasonable accommodations, your campus's disability services office will provide you with a Letter of Accommodations. Please share this letter with your instructors and discuss the accommodations with them as early in your courses as possible. To begin this process, please complete the Registration form on the ODS web site at: https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/registration-form.
