Brief Syllabus
37:575:330 Working Women and the Law

Course Description:
Survey of law affecting women as employees – anti-discrimination, OSHA, and other laws. How law relates to advancement opportunities for women, the glass-ceiling, and employer behavior.

Important information:
This class takes a comparative, social science approach to understanding law. It is particularly suitable to non-majors in related Social Science or Social Analysis majors.

Learning Objectives. The student is able to:

Labor Studies and Employment Relations Department:
• Apply employment relations legal concepts, and substantive institutional knowledge, to understanding contemporary developments related to work. (Goal 2).

School of Management and Labor Relations:
• Demonstrate an understanding of how to apply knowledge necessary for effective work performance. (Goal VI)

Assessment of student success in meeting learning objectives:
Typically a rubric is applied to particular essay or short answer questions on the final exam for this purpose.

In addition, grades are also based on student performance on papers, exercises, discussions, short written assignments, and objective items on exams.