Course Description
This course will cover topics in labor and employment history, including the changing nature of work, worker movements, and employment relations in the United States. The course will cover the industrial revolution and changing market economy of the late 18th and early 19th century, slavery and freedom, the “labor question” of how the promises of democracy and independence in the U.S. measured against realities of wage labor in the changing workplaces and economic arrangements of the 20th century, and the changing nature of work in the 21st. We will explore the attitudes, ideologies, cultures, and politics of workers, labor leaders, and employers. This course will also examine how workers of different national, ethnic, racial, and gender backgrounds have experienced work and contributed to the development of unions and worker movements. Other important themes include the rights and responsibilities of employers and workers, the role of the state in the economy and the workplace, the rise and decline of collective bargaining and the New Deal order, globalization and neoliberalism, and the current problems facing workers and the emergence of new worker movements.

Course Objectives
This course aims to enable students to:
- Understand how the past shapes the present
- Understand how and why work and workplaces have changed over time
- Understand how social, cultural, and economic forces have shaped U.S. labor history
- Analyze the strengths and weaknesses of different labor systems
- Assess how the state, employees, and worker organizations affect working conditions and living standards
- Apply insights from the past to contemporary labor problems
- Identify and evaluate the main arguments and supporting evidence in a text
- Enhance writing, communication, and leadership skills
- Expand their sense of personal and political possibility

Format and Requirements
This is a reading seminar with an extensive writing component. As we learn about and discuss the history of work and employment in the United States, we will also be honing our critical thinking and writing skills. In class we will discuss theory, history, and policy related to labor and capitalism. There will be some small-group discussions on weekly readings and themes. We may also watch videos or other media related to the course. We will have workshops related to writing at the graduate level. Students will write two 2-page reading analysis papers, periodic paragraphs on course themes, and a final research paper or case study. The final project will include a project proposal, annotated bibliography, and rough draft.

Class participation and grading assessment
Attendance is mandatory. All students should arrive to class on time, having completed the reading and writing prep work and having prepared at least one discussion question for the group. All assignments are due at the beginning of class. Late work will be penalized at least 10 points per day. Participation assessment is based on class preparedness, active involvement with small- and large-group discussions, and engaged listening. Do not come to class if you are contagious or unable to focus on the course discussions. While we only meet once a week and your participation grade requires you to be in class, I expect you to use your best judgement.

How to read for class
Reading is an active process. You must read critically. This does not mean you must find something to criticize about the material. Instead, you have to read closely, analyze the argument and use of sources, and then decide what you think about the author’s point. Are you convinced? Did something challenge your assumptions? Were your ideas confirmed or contradicted?

Start by reading the title, subheading titles (if any), and then the introduction and conclusion. As you read, ask yourself the following questions and take notes:

- What is the subject?
- What is the author’s argument? – restate this in your own words
- Why does it matter (what’s the big picture)?
- What sort of evidence is used? Is it used effectively?
- How is the reading organized?
- What assumptions did the author start with? How did that impact the argument?

You will find that reading critically will allow you to more easily construct discussion questions, help you feel more prepared for class, and prepare well for the writing assignments.

How to develop effective discussion questions
A crucial part of becoming skilled at critical thinking and analysis is learning to ask good questions. Because of this, I will ask you to develop and share at least one question for each week’s readings. The purpose of the questions is to direct the class to delve into the central issues and concerns in the readings. Questions can engage the historical material presented (for example, a question related to the effects of worker political participation in a period) or historiographical concerns (how the authors analyzed sources). Questions can also be about larger themes (how the reading relates to freedom, democracy, and/or U.S. political economy).

Questions that begin with who, what, where, and when can often be answered with specific information. For this reason, they do not make good discussion questions. Do not ask questions that can be answered with a quick internet search. Questions that begin with how or why ask for explanations. They are usually the analytical questions that tend to make for better discussion. If you have identified an issue or idea that interests you but do not have a question, try asking how or why it matters and see what happens.

How to write for class
All writing assignments should be double-spaced in Times New Roman, 12-point font with one-inch margins. Citations should use Chicago Manual of Style guidelines. Your name should be in the first page header. Start numbering pages on page 2 (inside the page footer). All essays require a purposeful title. You must cite all your sources. Plagiarism will be penalized with a zero on the assignment, failure in the course, and/or reporting to the academic integrity office.
Themed analysis papers may not exceed 2 pages. These essays should critically engage with the readings/class discussion and how a theme relates to the broader course. You do not need to “cover” every aspect from the readings but should focus on what most interests you and supports YOUR analysis of the material. It is often useful to ask yourself what these readings contribute to our understanding of work and labor in the U.S. and what problems remain. This should be your analysis (defined as your thoughts/opinions plus reasoning/evidence), not a summary.

The final project should be 7-10 pages. Use footnotes and bibliography for citations.

Basic Needs Security
Any student who has difficulty affording groceries or accessing sufficient food to eat every day, or who lacks a safe and stable place to live and believes this may affect their performance in the course, is urged to contact the Dean of Students for support. Furthermore, please notify me if you are comfortable in doing so. I will help you find resources. If you have difficulty with childcare, children are welcome in class under most circumstances (sick students and others should not come to class, for everyone’s health). Other family/close relation emergencies may occur. Mental health is a key component to a sustainable life. It is sometimes necessary to miss class for physical or mental health reasons. Let me know in advance or as soon as possible if you are missing class for any health or quality of life reasons. If you need assistance please communicate early and often.

Academic Integrity
Academic integrity requires that all academic work be the product of an identified individual or individuals. Joint efforts are legitimate only when the assistance of others is explicitly acknowledged and permitted by the assignment. Ethical conduct is the obligation of every member of the university community, and breaches of academic integrity constitute serious offenses. Students must assume responsibility for maintaining honesty in all work submitted for credit and in any other work designated by the instructor of this course. Students are also expected to report incidents of academic dishonesty to the instructor or dean of the instructional unit. For more information on the Rutgers University Academic Integrity Policy, see http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/academic-integrity-policy/

The instructor for this course holds the copyright to the course teaching materials, including lecture slides, discussion questions, exams, and assignments. The copyrights to the readings and films belong to their rights holders (authors, producers, publishers, etc.). Students may not copy or distribute this material without the written permission of the instructor. Unauthorized distributions of course materials are serious offenses. For more information on the Rutgers University Copyright Policy, see http://policies.rutgers.edu/sites/policies/files/50.3.7-current.pdf

Disability Statement
Rutgers University welcomes students with disabilities into all of the University's educational programs. In order to receive consideration for reasonable accommodations, a student with a disability must contact the appropriate disability services office at the campus where you are officially enrolled, participate in an intake interview, and provide documentation: https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/documentation-guidelines. If the documentation supports your request for reasonable accommodations, your campus’s disability services office will provide you with a Letter of Accommodations. Please share this letter with your instructors and discuss the accommodations with them as early in your courses as possible. To begin this process, please complete the Registration form on the ODS web site at: https://ods.rutgers.edu/students/registration-form.

Turnitin

Students agree that by taking this course all required papers may be subject to submission for textual similarity review to Turnitin.com for the detection of plagiarism. All submitted papers will be included as source documents in the Turnitin.com reference database solely for the purpose of detecting plagiarism of such papers. Use of the Turnitin.com service is subject to the Usage Policy posted on the Turnitin.com site. Students who do not agree should contact me immediately.

Academic Freedom

Freedom to teach and freedom to learn are inseparable facets of academic freedom. This class will introduce an array of sometimes-conflicting ideas and interpretations of U.S. labor and employment history, and all who partake in the course should feel encouraged to express their views in an open, civic forum.

Rutgers Learning Centers

Rutgers is committed to your success and offers free academic services to all students. The Learning Centers provide tutoring, study groups, and review sessions for your courses. They also host workshops and provide individual academic coaching to help you further develop your study strategies and self-management skills. To learn more about how the LCs can help you succeed, visit rlc.rutgers.edu.

Communication/Email/Electronic Devices

Feel free to email me with questions, concerns, ideas, and/or issues that may arise during the semester. Remember to check the syllabus or Canvas resources for general questions before contacting me. I will reply to most emails within 24 hours. Students are responsible for looking for announcements or updates on Canvas.

If I feel your use of cell phones, laptops, or other devices are distracting you or other students, I will prohibit the use of electronic devices for the rest of the semester. Do not disrupt class, use social media, check or reply to text messages, or do other coursework during our class time. Violations will result in participation grade penalties.

Course evaluation

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Category</th>
<th>Points</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Participation</td>
<td>280</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Analysis papers</td>
<td>200</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reading responses</td>
<td>75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Project proposal/bibliography</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rough draft</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Final project</td>
<td>100</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total</td>
<td>755</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Weekly schedule (may be subject to change; changes posted to Canvas and/or by email)

Week 1-27 Jan: Introductions/Race & Nationalism and the History of Capitalism
Readings:
- Syllabus

Week 2-3 Feb: The Industrial Revolution and the Rise of Market Capitalism
Readings:
Assignment:
- Race & Nationalism and the History of Capitalism analysis paper due

Week 3-10 Feb: Slavery and Freedom (No class meeting)
Readings:
Assignment:
- Discussion posts on Canvas (10 - 13 February)
Week 4-17 Feb: Immigration and Contract Labor
Readings:

Assignment:
- Reading response paragraph due

Week 5-24 Feb: The Gilded Age and Progressive Era “Labor Question” (No class meeting)
Readings:
- IWW, “Manifesto and Preamble,” History is a Weapon, 1905 & 1908 (online).

Assignment:
- Discussion posts on Canvas (24-27 February)

Week 6-02 Mar: The New Deal and Collective Bargaining
Readings:
Assignment:
- Project proposal and annotated bibliography due
- Reading response paragraph due

Week 7-09 Mar: Industrial Unionism
Readings:

Week 8-16 Mar: Spring Break

Week 9-23 Mar: Labor and Social Movements
Readings:

Week 10-30 Mar: Public Sector Unions
Readings:

Assignment:
- Labor and Social Movements analysis paper due
Week 11-06 Apr: Neoliberalism and the Decline of Collective Bargaining
Readings:
Assignment:
- Rough draft due

Week 12-13 Apr: New Labor Movements
Readings:
- David Bensman, “Port Truck Drivers on Strike! A Dispatch from Two of the Nation’s Largest Ports, Dissent, 22 Nov 2014 (online).

Week 13-20 Apr: Changing Nature of Work: A New Gilded Age?
Readings:
- Edward T. O’Donnell, “Are We Living in the Gilded Age 2.0?,” History Stories, 31 Jan 2019 (online).

Week 14-27 Apr: Working-Class Liberation in the 21st Century
Readings:
- Megan Jula, “Millions of People are Tired of Getting Screwed. This is What a Worldwide Workers’ Movement Looks Like,” Mother Jones, 28 Feb 2018 (online).
Assignment:
- Reading response paragraph due

Week 15: Final Projects
Assignment:
- Final project presentations
- Final projects due